About Coverings

A covering refers to the breeding of a mare and a stallion. You can choose to accept a public or private covering offer for your mare.

Accepting a covering offer allows you to strategically enhance a bloodline by producing foals with superior genetics.

There are three different types of coverings: public, private, and team.

Public Covering

Posted by a player on the public coverings page, where it becomes available for any player to accept for their mare.

Private Covering

Posted between two specific players in a reserved exchange or is posted by you to use for one of your own mares.

Team Covering

Posted by players who are on the same team in a reserved exchange to use only on mares who hold the team affix. These coverings are only given out by stallions with the team affix as well.

About Team Coverings

Players who compete on the same team can offer reserved coverings to members of their team from a horse who wears the team's affix.

When a horse wearing your team's affix reaches 2 years and 6 months of age, a covering may be offered or accepted.

Stallions may only offer coverings to mares with the team affix, and mares may only accept covering offers from stallions with the team affix. This prevents team members from accidentally or intentionally mixing the team's genetic bloodline of horses with outside horses.

All team covering offers are listed at 0 equus, so team members never have to pay for a team covering.

Team Affixes

You can use an affix that is shared across all your team mates for all horses belonging to the breed that you all collaborate on together. Only purebred horses can receive the team affix.

The team affix is automatically assigned to a foal born from horses bearing the team's affix if the foal's genetic potential is higher than the maximum threshold you have set for your sales.

Horses exceeding this genetic potential cannot be sold outside the team, unless they are geldings. Their affix cannot be withdrawn or replaced.

Cover a Mare with a Public Covering Offer

Players can breed a mare that is at least 2 years and 6 months of age by accepting a covering offer.

1. Navigate to a mare's private page in your breeding farm.
2. Find the Breeding tile on your mare's page and select Cover my mare.
The public coverings search page displays.
3. Use the available filter feature to apply specific criteria to your search and select Display coverings.

4. Pick the public covering offer you'd like to accept and select Choose.
A confirmation page displays that allows you to preview the genetic details of the stallion before accepting the covering.
5. Confirm that the genetic details for both the sire and dam you are attempting to breed align with your desired traits.
6. If desired, apply items from the Black Market to your mare to enhance the gestation period or the foals she gives birth to.
Items display on the right-hand side of the window. To apply an item to the covering, select Use.
7. Select Cover my mare.

Register a Horse in an Equestrian Center

At six months of age, after your horse has been weaned, you must board your horse in an equestrian center so that you can put it to bed and continue caring for it. The equestrian center you choose for your horse can have an impact on your horse's care and energy levels depending on the benefits it offers.

1. Access the private page of the horse you want to board.
2. Locate the Equestrian Center tile on the horse's page and select Register my horse.
The equestrian center registration page displays.
3. (Optional) Use the filter options to display equestrian centers that best suit your criteria.
You can choose to board your horse in a public equestrian center or a reserved box. Equestrian center managers can choose to reserve boxes for their own horses or for other players.
4. Determine the length of stay for your horse and select the equus amount listed for the desired equestrian center and length of stay.
The private page of your horse displays. Your horse is now boarded in an equestrian center.
